Henry Cabot Lodge Resigns As Ambassador To Viet Nam

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Mrs. George E. Overbey and Mrs. Louis Charles Ryan were in church Sunday with their father Wallace Key for Father's Day.

Children will never regret honoring their parents.

Dr. Walter Courtenay, minister of the First Presbyterian Church Sunday night, said that the Civil Rights Bill which was passed Friday, "So unbalanced are we in much of our current thinking that we now propose to pass laws forcing employers to hire people they neither want nor need; to force others to serve people they do not want to serve; to force others to work with people they do not want to work with; and to threaten honest citizens with fines, jail sentences and a loss of their livelihoods for enjoying what they have been trained to believe are the privileges of our American democratic free enterprise system."

The Fiscal Court has put an air conditioner in the court room.

The vandals who knocked 26 windows out of Carter School Saturday night don't realize that the money to pay for the approximately $10,000 damage is coming from the taxpayers.

Tourist Of The Month To Be Selected

The Murray Lions Club's first "tourist of the month" will be selected here Thursday afternoon by club members Bryan Tolley and James Shelton.

With the help of Murray Police Tolley and Shelton will halt an out of state car and then through the cooperation of local businessmen spread a welcome mat to the city.

The family will be given lodging in a local motel, the lady will receive a beauty shop appointment and then they will be made to feel at home during the remainder of their stay.

While the lady visits the beauty shop the man will receive token gifts of a tour of downtown stores. Together they will tour the city, visit the Ledger & Times for a personal interview with the editor, have their picture snapped and then dine out at a local restaurant.

Entertainment for the evening will include bowling and theatre tickets. In July and August the tourist of the month will be taken to see "Stars in My Crown".

After breakfast the next day the family will drive to a local service station where their auto will be filled with gas.

Project chairman Vernon Anderson asks that local citizens take a moment to make the "tourist of the month" really feel welcome.

Henry Cabot Lodge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today accepted the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam.

Lodge, 61, was named to the post in the critical south-east Asian post.

At an impromptu news conference in his office, Johnson announced that Lodge had submitted his resignation, dated June 19, saying that he must retire to private life for personal reasons.

The President said he was accepting the resignation with "deep regret." He added that Lodge was expected to return to Washington this week and that he will meet with him then.

The President also announced his intention to nominate Gen. Earle F. Wheeler, Army chief of staff, to succeed Gen. Taylor as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He did not name Wheeler's replacement.

The President announced that he was naming Assistant Secretary of State U. Alexis Johnson as deputy ambassador to the Republic of Viet Nam.

He said that Johnson, a career diplomat, will proceed to Saigon immediately and will act as the chief of mission until Taylor's arrival to succeed Lodge.

The President praised both Taylor and Johnson for accepting the new post on short notice and said they had the highest qualifications for their new assignments.

"I'm satisfied that together they will give the United States the best field leadership" in support of United States policies in South Viet Nam, Johnson said.

In his letter of resignation Ambassador Lodge, said a postulate Republican presidential nominee, said his resignation was prompted entirely by personal reasons.

He thanked the Chief Executive for his guidance and devotion for helping him to carry out the job. Johnson wrote Lodge that he should make his farewell calls in Saigon and that he hoped to see him as soon as he returned.

Elderly Man Hit By Car Near Noon

Mr. J. C. Hamilton, 73, was injured at 12:30 this afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Helen Barnett King, police said.

The accident occurred just north of Olive Boulevard on North 16th street. Mr. Hamilton was knocked to the pavement and suffered a fractured left leg above the knee, a bruise on the right forehead and a cut on the right hand. He was taken to the Murray Hospital where he was treated and then transferred to a Paducah hospital.

A witness who saw the accident reported to police that she saw the accident and said that Mr. Hamilton just stepped out in front of the car of Mrs. King. Police said she was driving about 10 to 15 miles per hour and that apparently the accident was unavoidable.

At 12:38 today an accident occurred at Seventh and Poplar when William Max McCushton struck the right rear wheel of the 1961 Rambler of Earl Herndon of Magnolia Drive. Mr. McCushton and Herndon were both going east on Poplar, with Mr. McCushton driving a 1963 Dodge.

McCushton said that apparently Herndon started to make a turn one way then turned the other way and the collision resulted.

Kennedy Halves On Sale At Cut Rate

ASHLAND, Ky. (UPI) — Uncirculated Kennedy half dollars are hard to find most places, but an Ashland bank had them on sale today at cut-rate prices — 49 cents apiece.

The Third National Bank of Ashland made the offer with the stipulation that it had to be all in pennies.

Wilbur A. Witten, vice president of the bank, said the offer was made in the hope of ending a severe shortage of pennies that has proved troublesome in recent weeks.

Farm Boy, Angry Bull, Horse Lead To Capture Of Murderer

LEBANON, Ky. (UPI) — An accused murderer is behind bars here today because of what may turn out to be the year's wildest bull story.

A young farm boy, a horse, and an angry bull are responsible for the capture of the man. He's Garland Russell, an ex-convict accused of killing one man and critically wounding another near here last week.

The boy, Terry Glascock, 15, rode his horse to a pond on his father's farm Monday, carrying salt for the cattle. It's a daily chore, so the cattle usually are waiting for him.

On Monday, however, when the boy arrived at the pond, all the cows present. But the family bull was not.

It soon became apparent why the animal was absent, though. First the boy heard some loud bellowing, snorting and yelling coming from a clump of trees nearby. Then he saw a man and woman dash from the trees and across the field, with the bull in hot pursuit.

The youngster had a pretty good idea who the two were. So he turned his horse around, galloped home, and told his father. His father then called the state police.

A short time later, a rather subdued Garland Russell, and a woman who said she's his wife, Freda, were found by officers, hiding in some woods near U.S. 58. They had eluded the bull, but the experience undoubtedly pacified them, for they offered no resistance to arrest.

Russell, who is charged with murdering one man and shooting another with intent to kill, had been the object of a wide-spread search since last Wednesday.

On that day a critically wounded Danville, Ky., man, J. W. Van Arsdall, showed up at another farm near here, dragging the body of a friend.

The slain man, Charles Irvin, also of Danville, apparently had been strangled. Van Arsdall had suffered multiple gunshot wounds in the head, arm and stomach. Police obtained warrants for Russell's arrest after Van Arsdall said Russell had committed the slaying and shooting.

The 33-year-old Russell recently was released from prison after serving nearly eight years for auto larceny and shooting a police officer at Perryville, Ky., in 1956. His 22-year-old wife is charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder.

Burd Construction Company Of Mayfield Has Low Bid $21,259

The Calloway Fiscal Court met in special session this morning to open bids for the construction of four large bridges in the county.

The low bid of Edward Burd Construction Company, Mayfield, was approved by the court. The company bid $21,259.50. Judge Robert O. Miller said that as soon as proper bonds are made, the bid will be accepted and he will sign a contract with the firm. A resolution passed by the court gave Judge Miller the authority to make the contract.

Other bids submitted for the four bridges are Crawford Construction Company, Paducah, $27,520.50; Woodruff & Kylon, Cadiz, $28,724.00; J. O. Evans, Murray route two $32,818.00; Lynn Engineering Corp., Paducah, $32,535.00; McDade Construction Company, Fulton, $25,065.80; Croley Construction Company, Paducah, $22,002.00.

Gene Hatfield, engineer employed by the Fiscal Court, was present this morning when the bids were opened. Hatfield is with the Ed Hannan & Associates Engineers of Paducah.

Judge Miller said that some time has been taken on the four bridges, but that Federal approval of the plans and designs and cost had to be achieved, since the county will be reimbursed for the cost of construction under the Civil Defense disaster program.

The county is seeking a total of $52,000 for the repair of roads and bridges damaged during the spring rains.

About half of the funds have been spent already and 90 percent of the work has been completed. The four bridges will take the remaining half of the total available funds.

It was felt that since the bridges are so large that it would pay the county to hire an engineer to draw plans for the bridges, then ask for bids from contractors.

Plans for the four bridges were on display this morning in the court room and all papers pertaining to the bridges were on hand to conform with Federal specifications and requirements.

The four bridges in question are the Midway bridge over the Clark's River, east of Midway near Old Tobacco; a bridge on the Outland School House Road (the Square Workman Road) near the home of J. L. Culpepper; a bridge on the Short Road in the Wadesboro District, one mile south of the Hickory Grove Church; and a bridge on the Hob Jackson Road near old Wadesboro.

The accident occurred about 45 feet north of College Farm Road, extended, at about 11:00 o'clock this morning.

Rome, Italy, Is All Things To All Men With Her Attributes Never Fading With The Years

EDITOR'S NOTE: What makes a city great other than its size alone. This is another in a series of 15 of the great cities of the world.

By WILLIAM SUNDERLAND

United Press International

ROME (UP) — Rome is a pretty girl walking across the Piazza di Spagna.

Rome is the Colosseum, shining in the unbelievable glory of a moonlight.

Rome is the narrow, winding streets of Trastevere, where good food is a byword and the cries of fishmongers mingle with the singing of wandering minstrels.

Rome is all things to all men, the city that gives herself as mistress to all who want her, but whose attributes—be they thousands of years old—never fade no matter how often known.

Rome truly is a city of beauty. Tourists can spend three days among the marble ruins and truthfully say, "I know Rome." Lovers of the Eternal City can spend years peering into courtyards, visiting tiny, out of the way churches, or just wandering through the Forum and just as truthfully say, "I wish I knew Rome."

Each visitor makes his own Rome—be it the mass-produced Rome of guided tours or the more world Rome of the brightly lit Via Veneto. In truth, Rome is all these things. She is an ancient city who has joined the modern world without losing her original function long since forgotten or outdated.

"I've seen everything. I know everything and I'm afraid of nothing," is her motto.

Started With Bloodshed
Rome was founded on April 21, 754 B.C. and promptly started her history with bloodshed—a tradition that was to continue.

According to tradition, Romulus and Remus were twins, whose mother, Rhea Silvia, claimed that the war god Mars was their father. The twins, for reasons of state, were dumped into the Tiber River but didn't drown and washed up on the bank near where Rome is now.

When they grew up, Romulus on April 21, 754 B.C. marked out the boundaries of what was to become Rome. Current inhabitants still curse him for not having the foresight to make that modern traffic would do to its narrow streets.

Rome, as the cliché goes, is a city of surprises. But one thing that usually is not a surprise to the visitor are the women. Thanks to the world of films, they expect a Gina Lollobrigida on every corner and a Sophia Loren in every cafe.

What is more surprising, is that the visitor to Rome doesn't go away disappointed—so long as his desires lie only along the line of visual appreciation.

Italian girls aren't perfect. They are inclined to be a little heavy around the hips.

But just watch what they do with that extra weight when they walk. Their legs aren't quite as slim as they might be. But watching them balance perfectly on stiletto heels makes you forget about that. Italian girls remain famous because they are girls. They know they are girls and they like doing girls. Since their birth they are told how beautiful they are. They believe it and they act it—and lo and behold they do become beautiful.

They know how to dress, for Rome is an international city and the Italians themselves have a natural good taste. A clerk may earn less than 100 dollars a month, but she can afford a couple of light cotton dresses that look like they came from Dior, even if they cost her only 15 dollars each.

Romans Are Modern
Rome is old but the Roman is modern. He leaves pomp, ceremony and centuries old custom to that little kingdom that happens to be set right in the middle of the city—the Vatican.

In Rome there is no changing of the guard, no keeper of the queen's keys, no drawn out ceremony for every event. But if the Roman, or the tourist, feels the lack of it he can go to St. Peter's Basilica.

In the 108-acre state there are the Swiss Guard, resplendent in their colorful uniforms, gleaming metal helmets and halberds. They are used with surprising readiness to keep back crowds of the need arises. When the pontiff moves, his court moves with him—cardinals, Papal guards, noble guards, Vatican gendarmes, personal chamberlains, with his distinctive dress lifted from sometime in the past and with his original function long since forgotten or outdated.

CHURCHMAN DIES
Elizabethtown, Ky. (UP) — The Rev. L. S. Houston, 69, former district superintendent of the Pilgrim Holiness Church for 15 years, died at a hospital here Sunday. He formerly had served pastorates at Carrollton, Ashland, Frankfort and Cloverport.

COACH PASSES AWAY
LOUISVILLE (UP) — Edward Q. Adams, 55, for 20 years an assistant head coach at Central High School here, died Sunday night at a hospital after suffering a stroke at his home. He was head basketball coach at Central for four years, and for the past two years had been a teacher of mathematics at the school.

DOUBLE BULLET—The Army's new "duplex" bullet, that fires two bullets in one, is shown (upper) by diagram, with the second bullet nesting into the first, and (lower) being fired. It's called the Duplex Ball Cartridge, is 7.62 mm. and two and three-fourths inches long. The second bullet does not follow the first directly, but proportionately displaces itself to increase the strike area. The calibre is the same as that used by the NATO countries.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 401
Victorious leadership against opposing forces in the Red River Valley, the spring of 1864, won higher rank for Richard Taylor from the C.S.A. government than his father held as victorious commander in the Union Army. "Dick" Taylor was raised to Lieutenant general. Zachary Taylor's highest military rank before he became the short-lived, 12th president of the United States (1849-50) was major general.

"Dick," who roved from Edinburgh University to the Sorbonne in Paris, to Harvard, before earning graduation from Yale, was one of two children of presidents who joined the Rebels in 1861. Robert Tyler, oldest of the eight sons sired by the 10th president (who had 15 children by two wives), became registrar of the Confederate Treasury when physically unable to serve as an active soldier. In his loyalty to Virginia, John Tyler himself turned against the nation he headed three years and 11 months. He died in 1862 a member of the Rebel state legislature.

"Dick" Taylor was to continue to fight for the Confederacy longer than R. E. Lee or Joe Johnston. Taylor did not surrender his army in Alabama until days after Lee capitulated to Grant at Appomattox and Johnston gave up to Sherman at Hillsboro, N. C.

The war cost Taylor returned to Louisiana and applied himself to the cause of re-establishment of the Union without hatred or vindictiveness. He became a realistic historian of the post-bellum years and his book, "Destruction and Reconstruction," is rated among the most fascinating of military memoirs. Douglas Southall Freeman, biographer of Lee and his principal subordinate, hailed Taylor as "the one Confederate general who possessed literary art that approached first rank."

He fathered five children. Descendants of "Old Rough and Ready" Taylor were to fight again for the U. S. in wars in 1898, 1917-18, 1941-5.

It's A Little Early, But The Yankees Are Already Beginning To Talk About The Series

By JOE GERGEN
UPI Sports Writer

Although it's a trifle early to start any series talk, that's exactly what the New York Yankees were doing today.

It wasn't the World Series, of course, because that subject hasn't been very popular with the Yankees since last October when they were whipped four straight in the fall classic by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

But the Yankees, who Monday night slapped their personal petates—the Chicago White Sox—for the 10th straight time this season, have already swept the season's series between the two teams in what must be considered one of the earliest clinchings in baseball history.

Actually, New York also continued its drive to what is generally expected to be another World Series appearance in 1964 with the 6-5 victory which boosted the defending American League champions a half-game in front of the Baltimore Orioles, whom they take on tonight in the opener of a three-game series.

hills in two thirds of an inning. The fifth-inning rally cracked the game open and only a three-run flurry in the ninth by Chicago made it close.

Yogi Berra, the resident genius of the Yankees, philosophized, "that's the way to get on top. Beat the contenders." Berra should know because his team has scored more than a quarter of its 38 victories against the Sox.

The Angels defeated the Senators, 5-2, in the only other American League game played to a decision. The Twins and the Indians battled to a 10-inning 8-8 tie when rain halted the slugfest in the top of the 11th inning.

NL Action

Over in the National League, the Giants moved to within a game and a half of first place with a 6-2 victory over the Reds and the Dodgers overcame Milwaukee, 10-9, despite five Braves' homers.

Steve Hamilton received credit for the Yankee victory, his fifth win in five decisions, and also drove in a run with a single in the fifth. Hamilton allowed only two runs in the eighth inning he worked, but Chicago cuffed reliever Hal Reniff for three singles and a walk in the ninth before Bill Stafford squelched the threat.

Roger Maris, Tom Tresh and Joe Pepitone each collected two hits and drove in a run to lead the 11-hit New York attack. The loss was the second for Baumann, both against the Yankees.

Chasler Bob Rodgers drove in two runs for the Angels, who ran their win streak to six, and scored the go-ahead run in the seventh on pinchhitter Willie Smith's single. Bob Lee gained credit for his third win although he pitched to only two batters, Jim Hansen, who like Lee worked only one-third of an inning, lost his fifth game for Washington.

Allison, Killebrew Hot

Two of the Minnesota All-stars, Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew, batted home three runs apiece with Allison hitting his 17 home run in the deadlock. Dick Howser, John Romano and Larry Brown all homered for Cleveland, which tied the game in the eighth on Brown's solo circuit.

Willie McCovey atoned for a two-run error with the second grand slam home run of his career in the San Francisco victory. McCovey, who had dropped a fly ball in the fifth inning when the Reds scored both their runs, cleared the bases in the sixth after Cincinnati starter John Taitouris had intentionally walked Willie Mays to set up a force situation. Taitouris was charged with the loss while Bob Bolin picked up his second win although Billy Pierce pitched the final four innings without allowing a run.

The Dodgers sent 11 men to the plate in the seventh inning when they scored six runs on five hits and three walks. Tommy Davis and Dick Traubek both accounted for two runs in that inning. Bob Miller was the winner and Ward Basinsgame the loser, both in relief.

Willie Mays Is A Near-Unanimous Choice For All Stars And Ron Hunt Becomes The Met Of Distinction With Berth

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants was a near-unanimous choice and Ron Hunt became a New York Met of distinction today when the eight starters for the 1964 National League All-Star team were selected by a vote of their fellow players.

Named along with the brilliant Giant center-fielder and the steady Met second baseman were catcher Joe Torre of the Milwaukee Braves, first baseman Orlando Cepeda of the Giants, shortstop Dick Groat and third baseman Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals, left fielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs and right fielder Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The eight regulars, who miss play the first three innings of the 35th All-Star game, scheduled for New York's Shea Stadium on July 7, were selected by a vote of 270 National Leaguers, whose only restriction was that they could not vote for teammates. The American League leads, 17-16-1, in the series that was instituted in 1933 as an attraction for visitors to the Chicago World's Fair.

Pitchers To Be Named

The remainder of the American and National League teams will be announced June 28 and 30, respectively, and the pitchers for both squads will be named on July 2. Rival managers Walt Alton of the National and Al Lopez of the American are expected to follow closely the voting pattern of the players in filling out their squads and to discuss pitching selections with other managers in their league.

Mays was selected for the All-Star squad for the 11th time while Hunt and Torre were chosen for the first time. Williams, who led both leagues in batting with a .373 average, when the voting ended, played in the second 1962 game. Mays, hitting .359 with 22 home runs, was picked by 240 of the 241 players who could have chosen him—with one lone dissenter casting his center-fielder vote for Curt Flood of the Cardinals.

Williams, Torre Popular

Williams was the second most popular choice with 327 votes and Torre, the Braves' muscular catcher who was batting .317, ranked No. 3 with 203 votes.

Hunt, Cepeda and Boyer each had 173 votes. Clemente had 160 and Groat had 92. The only really close vote was at shortstop where Groat out-pollied Leo Cardenas of the Cincinnati Reds, 92-87. Boyer, Groat and Mays are the only repeaters from the 1963 starting team.

Second choices in the voting were catcher John Edwards of the Reds, 24 votes, first baseman Bill White of the Cardinals 15, second baseman Bill Mazeroski of the Pirates 52, third baseman Ron Santo of the Cubs 84, left fielder Willie Stargell of the Pirates 17, Flood 17 and Hank Aaron of the Braves 67.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Name the greatest sports surprises you've ever seen and you have to put Ken Venturi's victory in the U. S. Open golf championship high on the list.

If you're a baseball buff there are a jillion of them. For openers you might go with the way the swaggering Giants disgraced Cleveland four in a row or the manner in which the Dodgers humiliated the Yankees last time out.

But remember that they were champions of their own division. This guy for a quartet of years had been from nowhere, the skills which were so promising damaged by aches and pains and this thinking altered by personal problems and doubts.

Clay A Surprise

It had to raise your eyebrows when Ossie Clay wanted out of the ring in his fight with Sonny Liston, was shoved into action and then weaved and bobbed and danced to an astonishing, almost unbelievable, triumph for the heavyweight championship of the world. Liston lost it sitting.

But there were a lot of big guys trained on the Open championship. Fire-eaters like Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Bob Charles were looking for the big prize and you don't find them failing to answer the starter's bell.

There was a fellow who made a big bet on Rocky Marciano when the stupid whispers were around that the Rock might be starched by Archie Moore. He knew that nobody ever could get to the Rock. So his heart almost stopped when old Archie smashed Marciano to the floor. Marciano got up, like it figured, and his anger put out the lights for the old mongOOSE.

I Looked For Charge

Which is the way it looked to figure even after Venturi racked up a 66 like shooting fish in a barrel in the first of the two final rounds. Because Palmer, the late-running whirl-away of the golf gaff, was only two shots back of Venturi and everybody knew he would make his bid coming down the stretch. This would be Jim Thorpe or Bronco Nagurski against an Ivy League all-star.

But, as it developed, this was a little more aptly named "Upset" handing Man O'War his only defeat. This was Cinderella Jimmy Braddock off the docks to slug the heavyweight crown off Max Baer's head. This was 18-year-old Bob Mathias, injured thigh taped and agony etched on his face, winning the Olympic decathlon from the world's strongest men in the dusk at Helsinki.

This was Ken Venturi as he won, not barely but decisively, from the best that could be sent against him.

New Dresses Put Emphasis On Nudity

By HARRY J. STATHOS

United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — The straps came off today for bare-bosomed "nude look" dresses in London.

Stores featuring the dresses that have shocked the United States and tantalized Europe planned to put more of them on sale.

Two London newspapers advised their women readers to keep their shirts on, but there were signs the fad was developing.

Police studied their regulations to determine if a British law banning nudity will cover the situation.

Legal sources said the law could be applied even to girls who show up at private parties in dresses without any neckline.

Damper On Fad

But the fad is not expected to outlive the summer. Observers believe the lack of central heating in most British homes, if nothing else, will enforce decency through the winter.

Two London women got a lead start last week, one by buying a bare-bosomed dress and the other by wearing one into a restaurant.

Mrs. Margaret Pawley, a 19-year-old redhead, went into a store with her husband last Saturday and asked to see one of the dresses that stopped traffic when it went on display in a shopwindow.

Mrs. Pawley 36-24-36 tried the dress and liked it. Her husband paid $14.70 for it, and she left with the dress in a box.

"I shall wear it at a party with my husband," Mrs. Pawley said. Pawley registered his approval.

"This is a release for women after hundreds of years of frustration," he commented.

Rae Southern, a 27-year-old singer and dancer, proved that her figure was her fortune when she landed a $470 a week job in a London nightclub after she showed up at an Italian restaurant in one of the new dresses.

Miss Southern said she walked bare breasted into the Capri restaurant last Friday to win a bet.

She was asked to leave, but the nightclub manager hired her to sing in his club wearing the garment that caused all the publicity.

A couple of London newspapers advised that women look better with their clothes on.

"What is suggested and half covered up is far more appealing than that which is totally exposed," said columnist Robin Douglas-Horne. He is the nephew of Britain's prime minister.

Vacationing By Car Is Great Fun

Imagine a vacation 25 or 35 years ago as compared to the present. That was a time when people went touring with few or no conveniences at their disposal. About the only place to go was to the local "campground" for a picnic on Sunday afternoon.

The cars of several decades ago were not nearly as reliable as they are now, and "filling" stations were few and far between.

Today, vacationing by car is a delight, compared to those days. Our interstate highways, expressways, and turnpikes are super-duper in comparison to the rocky, muddy roads we once had to travel.

At nearly every road side and on every highway, or within easy access, there are motels, hotels, and restaurants that offer facilities that you can both enjoy and afford for the whole family.

Service stations are plentiful as well as helpful. They provide not only fuel, but a clean place to rest, freshen up a bit, and gather information as to sights in the surrounding areas.

We now have chambers of commerce, automobile clubs, travel bureaus, and travel agencies of large companies that help in selecting the best possible routes and make it their business to see that we have a pleasant vacation.

Why not plan a trip soon? Vacation time is here and it isn't what it used to be — that's for sure. See you on the highway.

More Women In Dig-We-Must Set

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — More women than men belong to the dig-we-must set, reversing the man with the hoe trend.

A study of 11,000 gardening families in 50 states shows women today make up 54 per cent of the green thumbs. Just a year and a half ago, it was the other way around with men constituting 55 per cent of those working front lawns and backyard plots.

A garden tools producer, which did the study, said there were several reasons women gardeners outnumbered men.

More women now work parttime or are not holding jobs outside the home at all, as automation eliminated the positions they once held.

Vegetable growing is a standby stretch of the budget.

Women want to keep in shape and find that gardening is a good way to get exercise and sustain simultaneously.

There are more women's clubs in the nation; ergo, more garden more garden clubs.

With some one million new homes being built each year, new homeowners take pride in making their grass greener than their neighbors.

The study revealed changes in gardening habits too. There has been a sudden, hefty increase in growing vegetables for home consumption. Today, vegetables are being grown by 33 million families 88 per cent of home garden households. The manufacturer's last study showed some 14 million families 36 per cent of gardening households growing vegetables.

More vegetables are being planted than flowers, which are next in popularity. Then come fruit trees, shrubbery, berries, nut trees and lawn care.

Researchers found that most — 82 per cent — gardeners are married. Of the married gardeners, 91

Waterfield Replaced As Chairman Of EDC

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The State Economic Development Commission will hold its first meeting since Gov. Edward T. Breathitt removed Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield as chairman at 10 a.m. EST today.

Breathitt assumed the chairmanship of the EDC after removing Waterfield.

Breathitt said he took the action because Waterfield's "attack upon me and my friends . . . and your persistent lack of cooperation in our economic development effort."

State Commerce Commissioner Katherine Peden said today that Mrs. Edith Fitzgerald, assistant director of the Division of Industrial Development, will serve as executive secretary of EDC.

Mrs. Fitzgerald has been employed by the state for 12 years and will take on the EDC duties in addition to her regular job.

She will take over the EDC post from former state Welfare Commissioner Carlos Oakley, a Waterfield appointee who had been on the Commerce Department payroll at $12,000. An order was entered recently removing Oakley from the payroll.

Mrs. Fitzgerald's salary will remain unchanged at $8,254 a year.

Fishing Good

by United Press International

A tackle box full of artificial lures should be of considerable aid in producing a refrigerator full of fish this week, according to the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Bluegill and white bass are expected to be the prime possibilities for anglers this week, with sunburn and heat prostration strong possibilities, if the pressure-cooker weather continues.

Kentucky Lake — A variety of fish are being caught — mostly by still fishermen. White bass, bluegill and black bass are best on worms and minnows in the bridge areas. Some sauger are being landed by casting into deep banks and trolling.

Kentucky Lake, below the dam — Fishing is liveliest on worms and cat bait. Crappie and white bass hitting do-jigs and some sauger are responding to casting and trolling.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 405 Imagine a company sergeant calling this roll: Stephen Killer, John Bearmeat, Crying Bear, Little Deer, Scarce Water, Spring Water, Poor Wolf, Big Mush Dirt Eater, Pot Felling, Rabbit Jack, Hogshooter. Also Camp Chicken, Flying Bird, Arch Bigfoot, Tyler Bigfeather, Hogtoter, Sweetcasser, Bone Eater, Arch Killer Clay.

There were actual names of men in companies of infantry organized among Indian tribes for the Union Army in the West. Spring Frog was captain of one company, Jumper Duck second lieutenant of another.

One regiment consisted mainly of Creeks, with a few Seminoles. Another regiment mixed Osages and Quapaws. A third was a Cherokee organization, including men who had been won over from Stand Watie's Confederate regiment.

Indians fought side by side with erstwhile white foes in some regiments. Company M of the 14th Kansas Cavalry was composed of Delawares and Shawnees.

"Delaware Indians acting as scouts for the Federal Army in the West," was the caption of this (below) sketch by H. Love, in Leslie's Weekly. "At the beginning of the war the Delawares lived on a small reservation in Kansas," the accompanying text related. "They numbered 1,085. More than eight-tenths of the men served in the Union armies as scouts and guides. The Indians in the Army usually volunteered for hazardous duties and proved more than a match for the sharpshooters of the South."

The Indians adhered to ancient tribal prejudice against speaking of casualties, and only admitted to losses and wounds when unavoidable.

Indians generally proved resistant to spit-and-polish in camp. They were slovenly in dress, careless of equipment except guns.
